Product description

This rear spoiler actuator is specially designed for the Porsche 911, model 991, in particular for the GT3 Touring variant. The complete unit bears the OEM number 99150404180 and comes directly from Porsche's original parts, which guarantees high quality and a perfect fit.

The condition of the part is described as used but very good and undamaged, which means that there is no visible damage and functionality is fully guaranteed. This drive is crucial for the correct functioning of the rear spoiler, which offers aerodynamic advantages and thus improves the stability and performance of the vehicle at high speeds.

Installing this original part ensures that the aesthetic and functional standards set by Porsche are maintained. As an original replacement part, it offers the assurance that the exact specifications of the vehicle manufacturer are met, which is not always the case with replica or third-party parts.

For enthusiasts and owners of a Porsche 911 model 991 who value authenticity and quality, this used but very well-maintained rear spoiler drive is an excellent choice for maintaining or restoring the performance and appearance of their vehicle.
